The Formation of the Government In The Emirate of Trans Jordan The Formative Period 1921-1929

*Hanan S. Malkawi **

ABSTRACT

This study discusses the issue of the Formation of the government in the Emirate of Trans Jordan during the formative period (1921-1929). And it presents the conditions during which every government was formed and how they resigned. It also argued the most important deeds done by these governments, and the difficulties that they had faced with a special attention to be paid to the role of prince Abdullah in assigning the Prime Minister and the members of the government whom Prime Minister is entrusted to appoint.

The lack in financial resources and local turmoils were the main reasons behind increasing the British hegemony and control, for the financial support which was given to the government was granted so precisely so to achieve their interests through direct intrusion in the affairs of the governments. The British forces the Prime Ministers and some ministers and appoint some others in stead of them as they wish.

This study depends upon several sources and documents which were not published, as those existent in the archives of Prime Ministry or in some of the British documents. Besides, in many of the contemporary newspapers written during the period concerned, and in modern studies which cover the same era that the study deals with.

Keywords: Government's Formation, The Emirate of Trans Jordan, The Formative Period.
